Complete Collapse of Giant Drive to "End the War" Is Threatened On North Front

Tokyo, Nov. 27.—(P)—Complete collapse of the United Nations end-the-war offensive was threatened today by heavy new Chinese attacks on the frozen northwest Korean front.

The U. S. 24th Division, its right flank imperiled by infiltrating Red forces, pulled back from Chongju near the west coast.

It was the second time this month that the battle-hardened Americans were forced to give up without a fight the rail and highway city 51 miles south of the Manchurian border.

All along the northwest front, Allied forces were shoved back by elements of two Chinese Red armies—more than 100,000 men. Swarms of Chinese attacked in pre-dawn darkness to the blare of bugles.

Ohio's Industrial Might Staggers In Wake Of Icy Blasts

Columbus, O., Nov. 27.—(P)—Ohio's industrial might reeled today from the icy blasts of the worst snow storm in 37 years.

The three-day blizzard obviously was blowing itself out. But in the snow-clogged cities and rural areas there was only paralysis of normal movement.

Thousands couldn't reach their places of employment. In many cases it didn't matter. Many firms were closed "for the duration."

Stilled by snowfall reaching as high as 30 inches were many of the steel mills of Youngstown and Cleveland.

At Cleveland, a chamber of commerce business analyst estimated industrial shutdowns there may cost the city $10,000,000 a day.

Cleveland still was under a state of emergency declared Saturday and police and 4,000 national guardsmen were under orders to "shoot to kill" anyone found looting unprotected stores and cars.

Virtually every public and parochial school was closed. So were many stores. Only a handful of city buses were operating. Highways were covered with drifts as high as 23 feet in some places and intercity auto or bus travel was non-existent. The state highway department estimated 20,000 cars were stalled along roadsides, and

Services Held In Pittsfield Church For Three In One Family Killed In Accident

Services in memory of Rev. and Mrs. Guy McIntyre, and son John, 14, who were killed Thanksgiving eve in a car-truck crash near Harrisburg, were held yesterday afternoon at two o'clock at Pittsfield Wesleyan Methodist church, conducted by Rev. Joseph Markey, pastor of the Sandy Lake Wesleyan Methodist church. He was assisted by Rev. George D. Snow, pastor of Pilgrim Holiness church, of Warren, and Rev. A. G. Carlson, pastor of Pittsfield church.

Nephews of the deceased acted as bearers and included Derle Hedstrand, William Chircuzio, Arthur Lind, Edgar Spoon, Joseph Tut-maher and Raymond McCoy.

Three songs were sung by Paul Morris, accompanied by Treva McKinney, who also played appropriate music. The songs were: "Beyond the Sunset," "Will the Circle Be Unbroken," and "God Be With You 'Til We Meet Again."

Interment in Pittsfield cemetery was postponed and will be made when the weather moderates and at the convenience of the family.

Friends and relatives were in attendance from Corry, Allentown, Warren, Pittsfield township, Spring Creek township, and Columbus township, and Jamestown, N. Y.

The McIntyres lived at Dugal until 1945 and Rev. McIntyre was employed at the Montgomery-Ward store in Corry while studying for the ministry. In 1945 he answered a call from the Pilgrim Holiness churches of Pricedale and Richyville in Washington county.

The family was on its way to visit a daughter, Mrs. Edward Wheatley, of Allentown, when the accident occurred about 12 miles east of Harrisburg. Also killed in the crash was Shirley Carpenter, 14, a friend of the family.

Frank L. Jajdek, driver of the truck, entered a plea of innocent to involuntary manslaughter when arraigned by state police before justice of the Peace Robert E. Buck, of Linglestown, on Friday. He was held for court.

SNOW JAMS CLEVELAND FREEWAY—Long lines of snow-blanketed autos jammed bumper-to-bumper on Cleveland's Shore Drive as slippery pavement and cold, balky motors, combined to make thousands late for work. A temperature drop of 19 degrees in seven hours, plus six to 10 inches of snow, brought the area its worst weather of the season.

Shoe Stores and Service Stations Boom But Pre-Deer Season Business Is Down

The weekend storm proved a bonanza to some Warren area businesses but was about as welcome as an "uninvited guest" for other merchants.

Local shoe stores did a landslide business on boots, galoshes, over-shoes all day Saturday, and entire winter stocks in many of these shops were completely exhausted by mid-afternoon.

There also was a fair demand for children's overcoats, mittens and warm underwear, with many persons using their Christmas Savings checks to pay for these purchases.

Service stations also did a big volume of business on batteries, tire chains and anti-freeze, and wreck service trucks were operating on a shuttle basis to get stalled cars going again and to pull many motorists out of snowdrifts and ditches.

The storm, however, put a big damper on weekend business at local sporting goods stores. The businesses usually do a landslide business just preceding the opening of deer hunting season, especially among out of state residents coming into this section.

But the impassable roads kept the great majority of the hunters home, and very little of this business will be recouped later in the season, since most of the hunters had arranged their vacation schedules to come to this section for the opening of the season today.

Some stores said it was the poorest pre-deer season business they have done since depression days.

A good sized crowd of local hunters, however, took to the woods and fields today despite the storm to search for doe, which became legal game this morning at 9 a. m. Doe season will continue through tomorrow only, with buck season starting Wednesday.

First deer kills showed up on fenders of cars in Warren this morning about 10:05 o'clock, just about an hour after the opening of the season. Numerous deer carcasses were seen, but nothing in comparison with the early hours of doe days in past seasons.

Among the successful Warren hunters to get a deer this morning was Sherry Adams, of 102 Alexander street. He finally realized a long time ambition of getting a deer with a bow and arrow. He felled a nice doe with a shot in the head while hunting in the Morrison Run section.

District Reels from the Effects Of Most Severe Winter Storm Experienced Here In Years

The Weatherman threw a Sunday punch over the weekend and delivered a hard blow that left the district reeling from the effects of one of the worst winter storms in years.

An over-abundance of both snow and rain combined to make the weekend a good time to stay indoors.

About the only bright spot in the whole picture was the fact that the Warren area escaped the full brunt of the storm which virtually crippled Cleveland and other large sections of Ohio, the Pittsburgh area, and the entire eastern seaboard as far south as Miami.

Chief concern here was the river, and the threat of a flood.

Things got off to a mild start with a light snow for Thanksgiving Day. But more soggy snow came Thursday night, all day Friday and then Friday night the temperatures warmed up enough for the snow to change to rain.

Saturday morning it was still raining over a wide area, and the Allegheny River, Conewango creek, and smaller streams showed rapid rises.

Fortunately, however, the weather turned cold again late Saturday afternoon and remained cold enough ever since to check, at least temporarily, the river rise.

The river level indicator at the Hickory street bridge Saturday morning showed 6.8 feet, which is about normal for this time of the year. By Sunday, the stream had jumped over the 13 foot mark, and crested about 6 p. m. Sunday at the 13.7 foot mark, just three-tenths of a foot under the 14-foot flood stage here.

The gauge this morning showed 12.9 feet, and the stream is expected to fall slowly, unless there is a sudden thaw.

Three inches of water covered the Warren airport over the weekend, and water backed up in the cellars of several homes in the west end, the south side and along Conewango creek. Some water also was reported in the basement of the Warren General Hospital.

Flood water also have blocked one highway in the area, the low-lying section of the road between Kinzua and Corydon. According to reports, all passenger traffic is being barred from that road, although a few trucks have been able to get through.

Borough and state highway department crews have been working around the clock in an effort to make the streets and roads passable.

Borough Manager L. M. McConnell said the street department crews will continue working on a 24-hour basis, and that it is hoped that by tonight all streets in the borough will have been plowed at least once. The crews are using two rented graders in addition to the borough's own grader and snow loader in an effort to clear the streets of their snow burden.

He said the crews will work all night tonight on downtown streets, and that owners must take their cars off these streets so that the work can be completed.

State Highway Department crews have succeeded in plowing the snow off main highways through the district, but it will be some time before the county's secondary road system is reopened to travel.

"The main roads are passable," a spokesman said, "but motorists are urged to drive with caution."

Snow, Wind and Rain Cause Damages In State Estimated To Total Over $100,000,000

By The Associated Press

Governor Duff has ordered emergency measures in Pennsylvania as state digs out of one of worst storms in history.

Twenty-six persons are known dead as a direct result of the snow, ice, rain and floods which paralyzed the state Saturday and Sunday.

Pittsburgh was blanketed under 27 inches of snow, the heaviest snowfall in that city's history. The previous record of 23 inches was recorded in 1925.

The Susquehanna, Juniata and Schuylkill rivers overflowed their banks, water pouring into homes along the rivers. Three feet of water flooded Lock Haven's main street.

Thousands of persons in the Altoona area were without electricity. A Pennsylvania Electric Company official called the situation "a catastrophe."

Colleges and schools closed. Penn State, Bucknell and Juniata called off classes today. In many other sections, from the Ohio border to the Delaware river, public schools closed down indefinitely.

Many western Pennsylvania roads remained impassable. The Pennsylvania Turnpike was ordered closed to traffic west of Bedford. It was the first time in history any part of the pike was ordered closed.

State police warned Pennsylvanians to stay at home, not to drive. Air and rail service was sharply curtailed in all sections of the state.

Many persons are homeless as a result of houses blown down, roofs torn off others and still more persons being driven out by floods.

Pittsburgh Slowly Digs From Under Costliest Snowfall

Pittsburgh, Nov. 27.—(P)—This industrial citadel today is digging out from under its longest, costliest, deepest and nastiest snowfall.

The snow reached a record depth of 27 inches. It fell continuously for 60 hours. Eleven deaths resulted in Pittsburgh. Six more deaths were listed in other equally hard-hit nearby counties.

Much of Pittsburgh's booming industry, well acquainted with periodic strike shutdowns, ground to a halt for another reason this time. Workers could not get to work.

The weather forecast calls for cloudy skies, slowly rising temperatures and snow flurries. The weather bureau said the snow flurries may be mixed with rain. Two to four additional inches of

Northeastern Section Reports Grief, Human Misery And Industrial Paralysis

By The Associated Press

The storm which mauled the whole northeastern section of the nation with record fury over the weekend had vanished today but grief, human misery and industrial paralysis lingered on.

At least 226 deaths were blamed on the devastating winds along the Atlantic seaboard and the heavy snow which fell as far south as Mississippi and Alabama. Damage in New England alone was estimated at $100,000,000, with threatened floods expected to add to the cost.

Most of Western Pennsylvania and northern Ohio still were digging out of snow which brought business to a virtual halt in such cities as Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Columbus, Akron, Youngstown, and Dayton.

The win which hammered parts of the Atlantic coast with a force of as much as 108 miles an hour at times was described by the weather bureau as the worst ever to hit that region.

The blow was accompanied by torrential rains which had sent some New England streams out of their banks. Some others were threatening to overflow. New York City, however, harvested a 25-day water supply. The city reservoir trapped 25-billion gallons, building up a needed reserve supply.

Resumption of normal business in the snow-bound sections of Pennsylvania and Ohio still was not in sight today.

With more snow forecast for today, Gov. James H. Duff declared an emergency in 17 western counties and declared today and tomorrow legal holidays there so that the banks could remain closed.

The shutdown in Ohio was more widespread. There, too, banks and schools remained closed and transportation stalled as crews bored through snow drifts as deep as 23 feet in some places in clearing the highways.

The cost of industrial shutdowns in Cleveland alone was estimated at $10,000,000 a day. The snowfall there was more than 20 inches. Only a few buses are operating.

Turnpike Gateway Is Turned Into A Giant Refugee Camp

East McKeesport, Nov. 27.—(P)—A thousand marooned motorists and the worst storm in the history of Pennsylvania turned this gateway town to the turnpike into a giant refugee camp today.

East-bound travelers halted by the closing of the turnpike streamed into East McKeesport over the weekend like a huge army of evacuees.

Their abandoned cars, buses and trucks sprawled through the streets and on the roads leading into town, buried in great drifts of snow.

But the storm victims slept under warm blankets—in fire halls, church pews and the local movie house, anywhere the citizens of East McKeesport could find room for them.

Three fire halls and the United Presbyterian Church resembled army squad rooms, with cots and blankets supplied by the Pittsburgh Red Cross and something approaching a G. I. chow line. The Red Cross picked up the check.

Here is a section-by-section picture of the havoc caused by the curious mixture of a raging snowstorm in the western part of the state and hurricane-like winds and torrential rains in the east.

Pittsburgh: Buried under a blanket of 27 inches of snow, the heaviest snowfall in the city's memory. Transportation nearly impossible. Schools closed down. Industrial concerns, including the U. S. Steel Corporation, shut down.

Vastly Increased Cost Of Producing A Newspaper Has Publishers Worried

Attached is from the current issue of "Editor and Publisher" and is reprinted in order to inform our advertisers as to what other papers are doing about the vastly increased cost of producing a newspaper. This is not a "build-up" for increasing the price of advertising in the Times-Mirror. The publisher of this paper is of the opinion that while our rates are not as high as many papers of approximately the same circulation, Times-Mirror rates are as high as merchants and other advertisers can stand and to raise them at this time would only lead to curtailment of the use of space and in the end we would be worse off than we are on the present rate schedule. By maintaining the present rates it is our opinion, more space will be used and the publishers will be able to absorb the increased cost of production.

The subscription rates of the Times-Mirror are much lower than any other papers in this section, even taking into consideration the fact that the Times-Mirror is only published five days a week. It is the intention of the publishers to maintain subscription rates at the present level as long as it is humanly possible. Of course if we get into a hot war or something else happens something will have to be done to keep the news content of the Times-Mirror at its present high standard. The home delivered price of practically every paper in the country, either by mail or carrier boy, is 5c per copy. The home delivered price of the Times-Mirror by carrier is less than 4c per copy. The mail price of this paper by mail in the first and second zones is less than 3c per copy.

This is the "Editor and Publisher" story:

Increases ranging from about 7% to 20%, in general and retail advertising rates were reported this week for several newspapers.

Effective Dec. 1, the Milwaukee (Wis.) Sentinel will add three cents a line to its retail display rates, a rise of about 8% on transient advertising. Benn Kay, advertising director, announced this week. Transient rate has been 36 cents a line, will be 39 cents.

The Philadelphia (Pa.) Daily News will increase general advertising rates to 41 cents a line from the previous 38 cents, a gain of almost 8%, effective Jan. 1, 1951, it was reported by Lee Ellmaker, publisher.

Increases of about 13% will go into effect Jan. 1 for retail display and Feb. 1 for general display on the Roanoke (Va.) Times and World News, Shields Johnson, general manager, reported. The open retail display rate will rise to $2.20 an inch from the current $2.20, discount schedules remaining unchanged.

General display will go up to 25 cents a line from the present 22 cents. Transient classified rates were adjusted Nov. 1. Contract classified will be adjusted Jan. 1. The Boone (Ia.) News-Republican will hike its national ad rate 20% Jan. 1, 1951, bringing it to six cents flat a line. Mary Goldthwaite Garvey, publisher, said.

Local advertising rates on the Columbus (Ga.) Ledger and Enquirer increased 10%, continuing a two percent discount for cash. M. R. Ashworth, publisher, reported. Open rate, per inch, was set at $2.80.

Across the border, the Montreal (Que.) La Patrie raised general advertising rates for Sunday about 17% and for the combined Saturday and Sunday editions about 14%, effective Jan. 1, 1951, according to Albert Girard, advertising director.

Sharply rising costs led to the announcements, according to the individual papers. At the same time, admen referred to increased circulation and improved services.

"Since V-J Day, 1945, daily circulation has increased 25%," said Mr. Kay of the Sentinel. "Sunday circulation has increased 25%. Overall expense was up 63%."

In Philadelphia, Mr. Ellmaker said, "This is the first general increase in rates since May 1, 1948, and aside from adjusting levels on our local rates in November, 1949, the first increase in local rates since the 1948 date. We have been able to take care of the great increases in costs to date by consuming the profits from increased business, but the recently announced increases in paper prices make this present announcement mandatory."

Happy Youngsters Give Santa Royal Welcome

Warren's business section blazed with carnival street Christmas lights for the first time this season as Santa Claus arrived with the snow storm Friday afternoon to be welcomed by a great crowd of youngsters and their parents.

Despite a pelting snow Santa accompanied by an official delegation including representatives of the borough and the Chamber of Commerce made a tour from the east side down Pennsylvania avenue, up Liberty street, west on Third to Poplar to Pennsylvania avenue and east to Second, with noisy and excited groups of little tots yelling and waving at every stop.

The procession formed in Franklin street, right resting in Pennsylvania avenue east, and there one of the largest crowds was gathered. In the formation, in addition to Santa and the welcoming committee were the High School band, retailers, and a group of linemen and electrical workers who had donated their services to make the lights possible.

Turning on of the lights marked the realization of hopes and efforts of a group of members in the Chamber of Commerce. Over a long period of years civic-minded merchants have centered their efforts toward having the town decorated at the Christmas season with carnival lights, but they dis-

Letters to the Editor

Editor Times-Mirror:
An editorial in The Christian Century, a leading church paper, is calling attention to something which it terms "a prostitution of religion," and which I believe merits serious consideration. It deals with our preparation for and observance of Christmas. This is what it says, "Christmas has become a two-month-long high pressure sales campaign to take department stores and retail shops out of the red."

It is high time that we bethink ourselves. It is certainly proper that we make preparation for the celebration of this great festival which commemorates the birthday of our Lord. We can't emphasize its importance too much. The whole Advent Season, which begins with the first Sunday in December, is meant to be a season of preparation for Christmas. We are challenged to prepare the way for the Lord, that He might be allowed to enter our lives, to reign there.

The decoration of our homes, our churches, our cities are certainly in place. But sometimes we wonder if these things are really meant to honor the birth of Christ. Is it not rather intended to bolster business? Strings of electric lights have been put up in the down-town sections and business areas of our city. It will all look beautiful and festive, and it will attract people. But when we consider what has gone into it, and how it all was done, we can't but wonder whether the Lord, whom we are to honor at Christmas, is pleased with it. It is hard for me to believe that He can be pleased and honored by anything that has been effected through disregard of His commandment. This decoration was put up by volunteers who did the work on Sundays—the Lord's Day—while services were held in the churches. Can this be pleasing to the Lord?

Which is more important, obedience to the Lord's commands, or big sales? The prophet Samuel of old told King Saul, "Behold, to obey is better than sacrifice."

Rev. Nore G. Gustafson.

Surprise Party Is Held For Member By Ludlow Church

Ludlow, Nov. 24—The First Mission church congregation sponsored a very successful surprise party honoring the 69th birthday anniversary of Mrs. Oscar Carlson, when 35 persons gathered in her home. She received many lovely gifts and a purse of money and refreshments were served by the women of the church.

Luther League has postponed its meeting to November 30. Edith Larson and Tillie Olson have been appointed Luther League counselors.

Lutheran Circle held its regular meeting at the church, with Tillie Olson and Mrs. Enoch Nelson entertaining. There was a fine attendance for the meeting, conducted by the president, Miss Olson, who also gave the scripture and prayer. It was voted to contribute $100 to the Augustana Pension Fund to help meet the quota set for Moriah church. Mrs. Algot Swanson read a very interesting article concerning the annual rendition of "The Messiah" by Handel at Bethany College in Lindsborg, Kansas. A social hour was enjoyed, after which refreshments were served.

Mrs. Mike Kalin and Mrs. Eugene Kalin are home from Hamot Hospital in Erie where they were taken after their car had been involved in an accident due to icy roads. Mrs. Kalin suffered lacerations of the face and knee and three fractured ribs. Mrs. Eugene Kalin suffered a fractured right knee, which is now in a cast and lacerations of the forehead. They were on their way to meet Lt. Eugene Kalin, arriving in Erie from Camp Atterbury. Due to the accident he received an extended leave of absence and spent the week in Ludlow with his mother and wife, leaving Sunday evening to return to camp. Both women are doing as well as can be expected.

Geraldine and Gerald Nystrom were honored guests at a party given by their mother, Mrs. William Nystrom at their home, in celebration of their tenth birthdays. Games were enjoyed after which supper was served, climaxed by the opening of many lovely gifts. Little guests included: Cathleen Burns, Sylvia Carlson, Emily Johnson, Alexandra Connelly, Mickey and Rose Servido, Kiester Connelly, Tommy Anderson, Dicky Carlson, Donnie Cochran and Cappy Erickson. Judy Johnson was unable to attend the party due to illness.

SPRY AND MIGHTY POWER PLANT

with a proud pedigree

HERE you behold the up-to-the-minute version of a high-compression engine that has taught a whole industry something about fuel efficiency.

Fact is, Buick pioneered the deep-breathing valve-in-head engine 47 years ago—and thus blazed a trail that aircraft engines—and more recently automobile engines—have followed

But don't let that ancient lineage fool you.

Today's Buick engine is not simply a valve-in-head. It's a Fireball—which means that it uses fuel-saving, power-peaking principles that are found in no other motorcar on America's highways.

"This is all very well," you say, "but what does it do for me?"

Mister, that's what we'd like to show you.

Come settle yourself at the graceful Buick wheel. Gently press the handy gas treadle—and feel this spry and mighty motor come to life.

Then head for the open road, and discover what a whale of a lot of fun it can be to have Fireballs under your hood.

Better come in soon, and get acquainted with the engine—and the automobile—that have won more than 200,000 owners of other cars to 1950 Buicks.

A CHRISTMAS CAROL

BY CHARLES DICKENS

Bob Cratchit asked Scrooge for a great favor—Christmas Day off. "A poor excuse for picking a man's pocket every twenty-fifth of December!" wailed Scrooge. "Oh, very well. But be here all the earlier next morning!"

Overjoyed, Bob ran all the way home to Camden Town as hard as he could pelt.

There stood the ghost of his dead partner, Jacob Marley, wrapped in the chains of his worldly selfishness. He told Scrooge that those who do not share their happiness on earth must, after death, wander the world in chains.

Marley told Scrooge that the true business of every man is to practice charity, mercy, forbearance and benevolence.

CAMPAIGN EXPENDITURES

Bruce Bissat, NEA editorial writer, who recently completed a post-election survey of Ohio, says the elections in that state this year are a perfect example of the futility of trying to determine accurately how much money is spent in major political campaigns.

The law puts a limit on the amount individual candidates may spend, but it doesn't mean much, since there isn't a limit on the sums campaign committees and other contributors may put out.

In the important senate contest, for instance, Senator Taft filed an expense record of $1529 and his Democratic opponent, Joseph T. Ferguson, one amounting to $870.

But if you add up the recorded expenditures of all the special Taft committees, you get a figure close to $430,000. And that's only part of the story.

The regular state Republican committee put out $435,000 during the campaign. Here you run into trouble. It can't all be ascribed to helping elect Taft, since that committee is responsible for promoting the whole state ticket. County candidates were handed money in addition.

Yet the costliest single items in the Taft campaign were paid for by the state committee—all the radio and television programs and the 600 billboards used for the senator. So what proportion of the $435,000 should be applied to Taft's expenditures? It's almost impossible to tell.

There's still another item. The state committee allotted an extra $107,800 to the campaign of the GOP's various congressional candidates. But in most places their promotion was woven in rather closely with Taft's. Their names often appeared on the same billboards, they showed up on the same platforms, were mentioned in the same radio programs, and they plugged Taft in their speeches.

How do you measure what share of the $107,800 should properly be chalked up to Taft? Again, who can tell?

If you added all these figures together, you'd come up with around $975,000. But the total obviously wouldn't be a sound indication of Taft expenses.

In the 1950 Ohio case, the problem is even greater. Tens of thousands of volunteers lent a hand at various stages of the campaign. Uncounted hours of free manpower, free gasoline, free telephone calls and assorted other things were tossed into the balance on the Taft side. They can't be priced.

On the Democratic side, the difficulties are no less. A day or so after the final date for filing of expenses, the most you could ascribe to the Ferguson campaign was around $120,000. This unfortunately included funds spent by the Democratic state committee for other candidates.

The Ohio CIO-PAC spent $74,470, according to the expense account filed by Jacob Clayman, the secretary-treasurer. Of this, he said, $48,204 came from "innumerable small contributions from thousands of persons." The bulk of the remainder was furnished by the national CIO-PAC.

Some other important labor outlays were still being prepared for filing, but it seemed clear the ultimate total would not be too revealing.

There was little likelihood, for example, that it would cover the cost of bringing in a long list of out-of-state speakers from the administration and the top labor command to speak against Taft. Furthermore, the national labor headquarters in Washington performed the basic research that supplied Ohio campaigners with their anti-Taft propaganda. How much did it cost to assemble and distribute the CIO's 200-odd page speaker's handbook which contained most of this material?

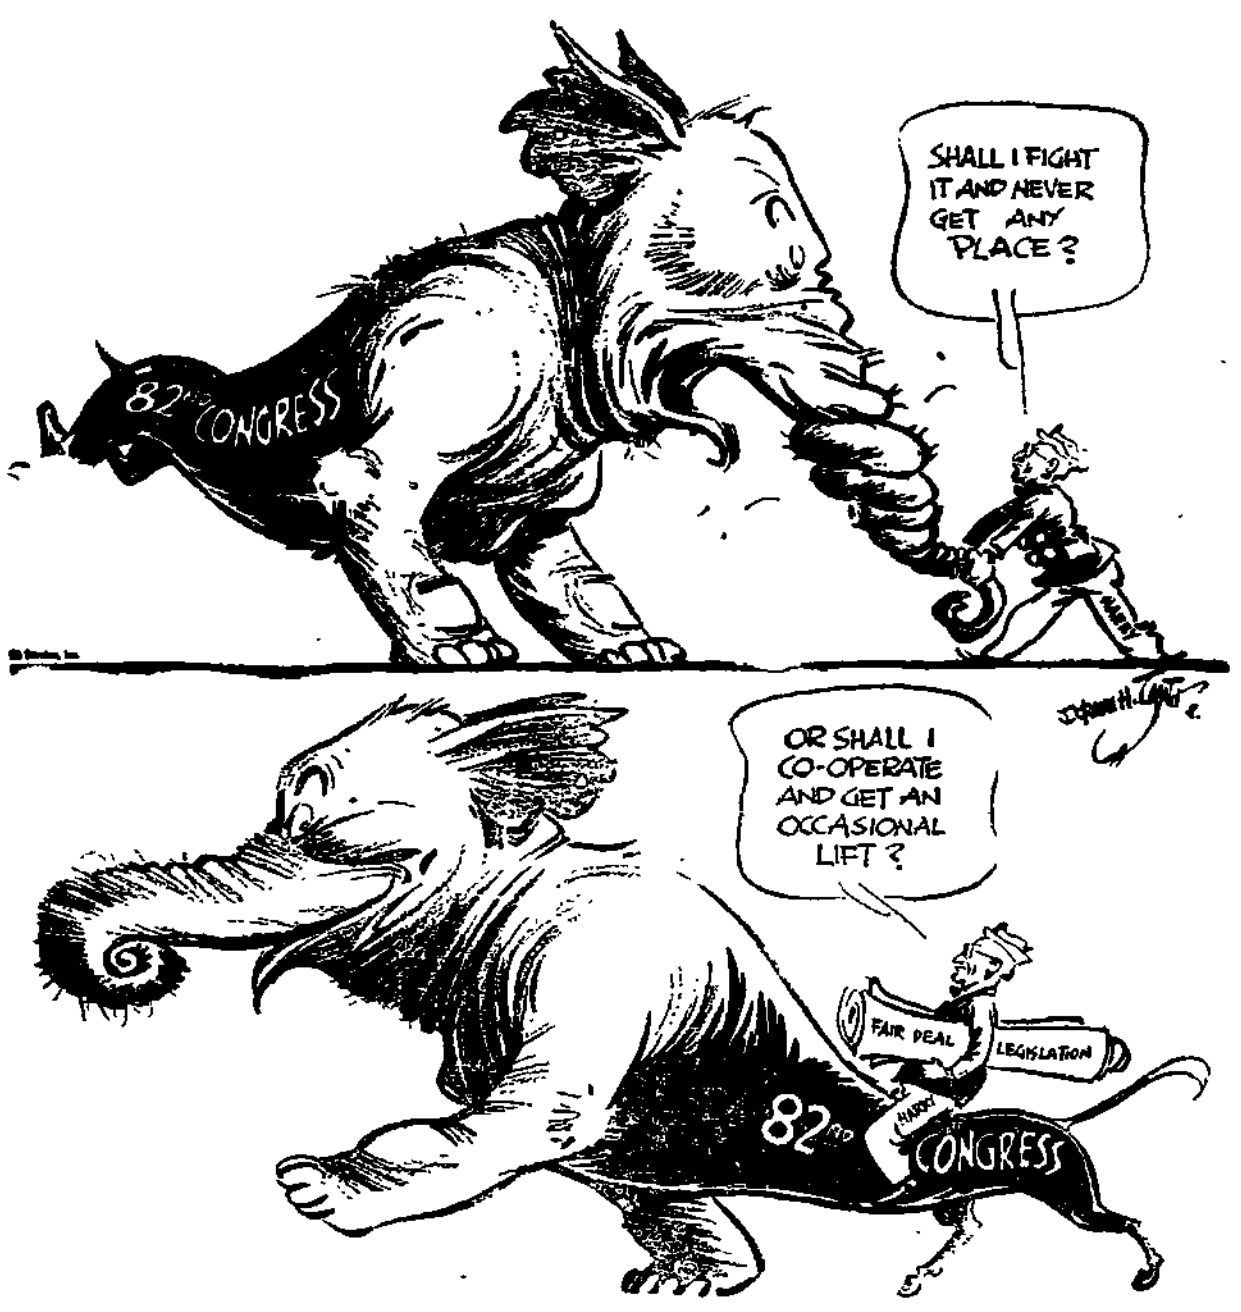

All of this suggests that as the law is now written and as campaigns are now conducted, very little can be done to ascertain fully what any candidate has spent. Perhaps only a congressional investigation could determine, but such inquiries are too costly to be made the rule.

If limits on campaign expenses are desirable, they ought to be extended to cover all contributors. Otherwise it would be better to forget the whole thing. Certainly it's perfectly silly to make wild charges and counter-charges about any man's outlays when there's not a hope in the world of proving or disproving them.

Most girls would prefer not to get just candy as a Christmas present. It's rapped as a gift!

Sympathy is great stuff except when it merely makes you want more.

It's Not Too Soon to Start Thinking About It

Here And There

In connection with Friday's ceremonies incident to the turning on of the carnival street lights and welcome to Santa Claus, here's a ditty from the Evening Mirror "Daily Reflections" column, of November 27, 1890, that seems particularly appropriate:

Sweet Christmas time is on the wing,
The days are short and cool;
The small boy with his level head
Now goes to Sunday School.
He does not fret about the past,
But thinks of things more pleasant;
In fact his mind is fixed upon,
The future and the present.

This And That: Friday afternoon's official reception to Santa Claus who participated in the turning on of carnival street lights at numerous intersections on the east side and in the business section far surpassed the expectations of the Retail Committee of the Chamber of Commerce, sponsors of the event; an unusually large number of youngsters lined the curbs all along the route all anxious to join in the royal welcome. . . . The Bemus Point-Stow ferry crossing Chautauqua Lake made its final run of the season Sunday night before the equipment is stored for the winter at the lakeside in Stow and it is predicted that the receipts for the season will hit an all-time low since the ferry was operated. . . . Ninety per cent of the guardsmen who left Warren with Company I will get Christmas furloughs according to word from Camp Atterbury; the soldiers will have the option of taking furloughs or a five, nine or ten days with the ten-day leaves starting December 27 and ending at midnight, January first. . . . Bob Shawkey, Jamestown Falcon manager last year, has been released by Detroit, and there are rumors that he is hoping to land the Cornish pilot job. . . . The American Legion drill team, having finished a busy and interesting season of appearances in parades and competitions, is now engaged in winter activities, one of which is scheduled for Wednesday evening from six to eight when there will be a spaghetti supper, sponsored as one of several events planned to help raise funds to keep the project going. The menu will consist of spaghetti, meat balls, salad, celery, pickles, olives and coffee. . . .

Just Slush: Saturday's heavy snow with accompanying rain, thaw and slush, proved a great disappointment to merchants who anticipated a busy shopping day; few people were on the streets during the morning and afternoon and those who braved the conditions and elements found the going extremely difficult. . . . Trying to navigate anywhere in town during the day was next to impossible with streets filled with slush and water from curb to curb. At one time Pennsylvania avenue in front of the Times-Mirror was running full toward the Market street intersection, where it clogged and formed a miniature lake that provided a splashing situation for the few people on foot. . . . And the Hickory street bridge was another spot that formed an irritating combination for pedestrians; the pavement section of the structure was filled with slush, and few if any drivers sensed the predicament of the people on the footwalks; as a result many garments were splashed so that it was necessary to send them to the cleaners. . . . Dr. C. S. Reese was one of the Warren fans who drove to Pittsburgh Friday expecting to see the football game Saturday between Pitt and Penn State, which was postponed until today. "Doc" realized conditions were going to get worse, so he lost no time in getting back to Warren, accompanied by "Chuck," his son, a student at the university. . . . "Jim" Hengst, boys' work secretary at the "YM," one of the moving factors in trying to secure a Youth Canteen, started for Tidoute late Saturday afternoon to bring to Warren Janet Gully, impersonator extraordinary, who was scheduled to appear in the benefit show at the Woman's Club, but wisely changed his mind when he discovered the conditions of the highway before reaching Irvine; as a consequence Miss Gully could not be presented much to the disappointment of the promoters of the affair. . . . Owners of a large number of automobiles left parked on some of the main streets of the business section will have to wait for a thaw before releasing (Turn to Page Six)

WASHINGTON COLUMN

Political Hatchet Men Start Campaign to Oust Acheson

BY PETER EDSON
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON.—(NEA)—They're after Secretary of State Dean Acheson, hot and heavy, and the odds are that ultimately they will get him. For when a concerted effort is made by political hatchet men to chop a man down in this town, 99 times out of 100 it succeeds. Secretary Acheson might be a hundredth man and he might escape. He says he will not resign under fire. President Truman has said that as long as he was in the White House, he would keep Dean Acheson as Secretary of State.

The secretary now has the full support of the entire State Department team. They like and admire him. They say that the morale of the department would be shot if Acheson were forced out, and that the conduct of America's international relations would be wrecked. Acheson has the respect and confidence of the diplomatic corps in Washington, and of the heads of the foreign governments that are America's allies. They openly state that they would be let down if Acheson were forced out and replaced by someone more acceptable to the isolationists.

Acheson has the cooperation of such Republicans as John Foster Dulles, Ambassador Warren Austin, ex-Senator John Sherman Cooper and others on the United Nations staff and in diplomatic posts abroad. But this support does him little good when such people as ex-Gov. Harold Stassen, Sen. Owen Brewster of Maine and Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy of Wisconsin go after him, and when his policies are under constant attack by Republican leaders like Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio.

THIS thing runs deeper, however, than mere McCarthyism. Newspaper editors from various parts of the country report that Acheson is mistrusted by their readers. And the whole State Department is under suspicion.

Trying to find out why presents a paradox. Public opinion polls indicate that a majority of the people believe that further aid to Chiang Kai-shek would be wasted. The Marshall Plan—which Acheson first presented—is considered a good thing. Foreign arms aid is considered necessary. The United Nations is approved.

The opposition is something instinctive, something personal. It is applied to the whole Department of State set-up. The old idea of "diplomats" was that he was a cookie-pusher, a tea-hound, a wearer of striped pants and spats, a carrier of canes, a foreignized fop. Dean Acheson is the only one in the department they know by name, so they take it out on him. Also, didn't he stick up for Alger Hiss? The modernized version of it is that the American career diplomat is also a parlor pink, out-and-out Communist or just plain pervert.

ALL this has presented a tremendous problem in public relations, and don't think that the State Department boys haven't been working at it. In the past year, top officials of the department have made over 1200 personal appearances, hitting every state and major city. The main purpose has been to show themselves and convince people that they were normal, patriotic Americans without horns and tails. These officials attend forums, lead discussion groups, hold conferences with any responsible group that wants to confer. They always seem to get good receptions and embarrassingly grateful thanks. They answer thousands of letters from inquiring citizens. They distribute papers by the million.

Secretary Acheson himself runs a heavy speaking schedule. This month he is making talks before National Conference of Christians and Jews, an organization of Negro women, the Council of Mayors, the National Council of Churches of Christ, the Farmers' Union Grain Terminal Association. He gets more invitations than he has time to fill. He seems to make a good impression. Off the platform, he holds his liquor well. He can tell a gent's room story with the next one. His profanity in anger is all that could be desired of any man. He owns and runs a farm on the side. As a hobby he works in his carpentry shop. Still he doesn't tell. Maybe it's that moustache.

Lead Of Ludlow Auxiliary Starts A New Procedure

Ludlow, Nov. 24—The new resident, Mrs. Melvin McCleary, was in charge of the regular meeting of the American Legion Auxiliary, held at the Legion Home. She instituted a slightly different meeting procedure which will include the national anthem, taps and Pennsylvania. Plans were discussed for a Christmas meeting and gifts and arrangements for Thanksgiving gifts from the organization placed in the hands of Willie Morelli and Mrs. M. I. Jones. Chairmen appointed included: Mrs. Morelli, rehabilitation; Mrs. Eugene Huber, membership; Mrs. Bernal Connelly, child welfare; Mrs. Stanley Carlson, Americanism; Mrs. Axel K. Anderson, coupons; Mrs. Vernon Swanson, Pan-Americanism; Mrs. Emil Nelson, music; Mrs. Enoch Nelson, publicity. An interesting report concerning the tri-county meeting was given by the delegate, Mrs. Vernon Swanson. Mrs. Axel K. Anderson reported 1,694 coupons had been collected in Ludlow. To conclude, coffee was served at a beautifully appointed table by Mrs. John G. Johnson and Mrs. William Ralston.

Ludlow Bridge Club was entertained at dinner by Mrs. Eugene Huber at the C. H. Gardner home, with all members present. Prizes were awarded Mrs. Melvin McCleary and Mrs. R. E. Wenstran. Girl Scouts had as a guest program consultant at their meeting, Mrs. George R. Anderson, who taught them how to make Christmas favors, a special project for this group for the Children's Home in Sheffield. The girls are beginning their sale of Girl Scout nuts and special candies, beginning this week, a permanent project.

The American Legion sponsored a turkey party at American Legion Hall at which ten turkeys were awarded as follows: Tommy Tucker Anderson, Harry Carl, John Bires and Gust Carlson of Ludlow; Kevin Miley, Roystone; Ralph Fredi and Robert Payne, Kane; G. D. Weaver, Kane; Grace Peterson and C. G. Koebley, Warren. Winner of the sales committee turkey was Joe Hawanec.

Many people from Ludlow attended the senior play, "Cheaper by the Dozen," when it was given last week at Kane High School. Everyone praised it and was proud that Ludlow children had a part in it: Dorothy Archer, James Connelly and Freddie Johnson and his dog, in the cast; Jimmy Lindquist in staging and Gail Olson in lighting.

Mrs. Robert Rushton, Malvern, spent the past week in Ludlow at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John G. Johnson and Aaron Alfson.

Pfc. Gordon L. Beers, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Beers, has returned to Camp Atterbury after having spent a few days with his parents.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Kellogg, of Lakewood, N. Y., Mrs. Ernest Olson, Warren, and Forest Herron, Allegany, N. Y., were recent guests at the Bruce W. Swanson home.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Gorman, Miss Betty and Robert Gorman were Sunday guests at the Gorman Sr., home in Endeavor.

Today's Business Mirror

BY LADER WINGET

New York, Nov. 21—(AP)—If the Korean war forces us to stop making some of those luxury goods classed as non-essential, maybe we will be able to get them from Europe.

There is practically no limit to what Europe can make for us, and producers over there certainly would like to sell their wares over here.

While we turn our attention to guns, and planes, and jeeps and those war weapons we know best how to make, Europe could sell us any pots and pans and toys and textiles and other consumer goods that might become casualties of the war machine in America.

The idea is nebulous at this time, but European business thinking is running in that direction. After all, we don't know yet exactly where civilian production cut-backs are going to hit—nor how hard.

W. Stuart Symington, U. S. defense coordinator, yesterday warned against going too fast in any all-industry controls plan before military production gets to rolling.

The thought of European aid for America is being taken overseas in the minds of the European banking mission which today ended a 4,000 mile tour of America under the wing of the economic cooperation.

The 27 bankers from 14 Marshall Plan countries sail tomorrow for Paris where they will complete a report on "suggestions which will assist the free nations of Europe eventually to be able to stand on their own feet."

Jacques Chaine of the Banque Francaise DuCommerce Extérieur of Paris said there is a lack of capital now in France for expanding production and there also is a fear of inflation if expansion is too rapid.

A similar lack of capital in the Italy was voiced by Frederico Pollok of the Banca Nazionale Del Lavoro of Rome and in Germany by Dr. Wolfgang Wacker of the bank Deutscher Lander of Frankfurt.

There were echoes of American troubles in the statements by these European bankers and their colleagues.

The Commerce Department disclosed yesterday that U. S. production in the third quarter of this year set a new all-time record with gross national product at an annual rate of $284,300,000,000 (B). That's a out $14,000,000,000 (B) ahead of the second quarter rate.

And the expectation in Washington is that this rate will continue to expand. The U. S. also is worried about raising new capital. A survey by the New York Journal of Commerce today shows that capital goods investment next year will be at the highest level in history—reaching a total of $22 to $23 billion.

And the inflationary impact on the nation's economy has been under constant review by the federal reserve and the treasury.

All of this enhances the idea that in America's race to produce guns and butter, Europe can supply some of the butter.

THE RAILROAD MURDER CASE

By R. M. Laurenson

Chapter 26

THE motorcar clattered along the rails, pitching fretfully from side to side like an impatient steer shaking off a fly. The signal maintainer leaned over, intently watching the embankment and ditch on his side of the tracks, and Marc Jordan, son of cap pulled over his ears, coat bundled up to his chin against the chill in the fall breeze, did likewise on the other side.

"How far from Zola, Morrison?" asked Marc, shouting to be heard over the raucous put-put and clanking wheels of the motorcar.

"About twelve miles, Mr. Jordan," replied Morrison. "What're we looking for, anyway?"

"I'm not sure. They rolled slowly toward a group of section men who were methodically tamping the track. Marc approached the section foreman supervising the work.

"Hello, Joe," he called cheerfully. "How's track business?"

"Howdy, Mr. Jordan. Good shape. Ain't seen much of you lately."

"Have you been all over your section since Tuesday?" asked Marc.

"Yep, believe I have. Why?"

"Find anything along the tracks that looked out of place?"

"Like what in thought. 'I don't know. It might be a small axe, or a knife—probably a large knife. There should be a towel or rag."

"Where?" he asked softly, turning to Joe.

"Beyond the head block 'bout a mile."

"That'd be about fifteen or sixteen miles west of Zola?"

"Yeah."

"Will you show me the place?"

"Yeah, sure."

"Come on, Morrie, let's go," said Marc, starting for the motorcar with long, quick strides. "Hop on, Joe. Show me where you saw that dog."

THE three men clambered onto the car. After a short ride, Joe touched Morrison's arm and pointed to a spot at the foot of the bank. As the car jolted to a stop, Marc jumped off and scrambled down the bank to where a small, furry black body lay partly covered with leaves. Carefully brushing away the leaves and dirt, he studied the mutilated dog from all angles. Gingerly sliding the collar around, he rubbed the dirt and tannish from a license tag.

Marc straightened and thrust his hands deep into his pockets. "Item. One black dog—very dead!" he breathed, eyes glistening with excitement.

Joe and Morrison gaped at him in puzzled wonder. He walked around the dog and sighted over it, up and down the track, his face wreathed in a happy grin. Then he grasped the carcass by the tail and heaved it onto the track. Unfastening the collar, he slipped it into his pocket.

"This what you're looking for, Mr. Jordan?" asked Morrison curiously.

Marc turned the dog over with his foot. "Yes, one of the things. But then," he murmured softly, "it had to be here! Absolutely had to be here somewhere."

Morrison shook his head dubiously. "I expect you know what you're doing. But darned if I see why you run around the railroad looking for a dead dog!"

she? And where? He sucked thoughtfully on his pipe and stared at the dog. As simple as that! Only how in the devil—!

Shrugging his shoulders, he turned to the section foreman.

"Joe, will you bury this so that I can tell Miss Joan that her pet has had the benefit of proper Christian rites?"

"Sure, Mr. Jordan."

"Thanks. Nice work spotting the carcass. Come on, Morrie, let's run to Zola. We've work to do."

Arriving at Zola tower after a jerky ride, they set the car off the tracks, and Marc inspected the layout. The tower was located at a crossing between the C. M. Railroad and the S. D. The tracks intersected at a long angle, with the building set in the long side of the angle. A mass of pipes spider-webbed out at ground level and connected with the tracks. Marc walked over to the crossing and looked at the tilted parallelogram formed by the crossed rails.

"What happened to you here?" Morrison joined Marc beside the crossing.

"Well, I'm out at Perkins—that's about five miles"—he jerked his thumb over his shoulder—"on a case of trouble. We just came by there. Johnny told me to stay on account of he didn't wanta delay Number 61. So I stayed until 61 goes by, and followed him."

"I'm going through here slow, maybe ten miles an hour. Right here I was derailed like you know about. The axe musta been laying in that left-hand corner, because I went off to the right. See, there's marks on the ties. It threw me in the clear down the bank. Skinned my hand on the cinders. I called Johnny soon's I found the axe."

Marc nodded. "I know I was in the tower when you called."

"Oh, yeah, sure," said Morrison. "Anyhow, it looked funny. I probably wouldn't've thought much about it only that train had just went by. I figured it musta come off the train."

Chapter 27

"HOW long after the train passed before you got here?"

"Oh, maybe five-ten minutes. I set on soon's he passed Perkins."

Marc locked his arms under his coat behind his back and rocked from heel to toe.

"When were you at Perkins, were you where you could watch the train as it passed?"

"Yeah," replied Morrison, pulling a tattered paper packet from his pocket and gnawing off a piece of plug tobacco. "Soon's 61 showed, I got in the clear and watched him go."

"Did you notice the last car?" Morrison massaged the stubble on his jaw reflectively. "Well, I did kinda look that car over. Johnny told me old Dick'd be riding on the tail, so I was watching for him. Couldn't see much, though. That hoghead was really wheeling it!"

"Could you see anything that was going on? Think hard, Morrie. It's very important. There was a murder in progress while you were standing beside the tracks. Perhaps you were a witness to it! Did you see anyone on the car?"

Morrison's brow was creased, with the furrows of intense concentration. "The back half was lit up bright like a Christmas tree. The only guy I could swear to seeing was a fellow in the glassed-in part, reading. There was light coming under the blinds of one, or maybe two of the windows forward. Couldn't be sure about that. He thought a moment and then continued, 'I think there was someone on the back platform.'"

"Man or woman?"

"A man, I think, but I wouldn't wanta swear to it. That platform was pretty dark. Just as the rear end passed, he straightened up, and I saw his shadow against the light."

"What do you mean, straightened up?"

"Well, you know. Maybe he was getting up from a chair, or maybe he leaned over to spit, or tie his shoe. I dunno. Anyhow, the shadow came up like he'd been bent over."

Marc nodded. "How about the other end of the car? That's where the murder was committed. Anyone out there?"

The furrows on Morrison's brow deepened. "It's awful hard to say, Mr. Jordan. If there was anyone on that platform, I didn't see him. I was looking at the train, but like I say, he was running like a bat outa hell and I can't say for sure."

Marc shrugged. "It's queer, Morrie. The train was reported at this point at ten-fifty-eight. We can assume that the murderer didn't stand around and admire the tooling on the axle after he—or she—swung so expertly. Therefore, the presence of the axe at this precise spot seems definitely to fix the time. Then in a matter of minutes, you bust along and find it. Does that make a difference, or doesn't it? I'm darned if I know. It's very peculiar!"

Marc paused and then added irrelevantly, "How'd you save the dog, died?"

Morrison stared at him in surprise. "Huh? Why, run over him by the train, anyway. She's all cut up, and her head's about off."

"Hm, yes. Looks that way. Well, let's head for Jalunet."

With his hat cocked at an angle and his hands thrust deep in his pockets, Marc picked his way through the maze of tracks of the freight yard. The control tower made an oasis of light in the gloomy pall of smoke. Arriving at the steps, he slowly climbed to the tower room.

He twisted the broken-down chair around with his foot, dropped into it wearily and propped his feet against the skirt of the stove. He returned a gesture of welcome from O'Connor, who was busy manipulating a telegraph key.

Finishing the business of the moment, O'Connor spun about and favored Marc with a grin.

"Howdy, Shylock!"

Marc grunted. "Shylock, eh! Have you mixed your characters, or are you being nasty? Howdy yourself."

"You been doin' a mess of trainin' around this man's railroad, Marc. You birds really clipped in here from Zola, this evening? What's the idea? You figurin' on takin' up the signal business?"

"I didn't go for the pleasure of the ride, I assure you," said Marc fervently. "They ought to spring-mount and air-condition those darn cars. What a way to travel!"

"O'Connor nodded. "You fellows can have the whole ball o' wax. Me, I'll take a nice, warm, sittin' down inside job."

"Marc, you better get Mr. Richards' murder cleared up pretty quick," continued O'Connor, turning away from the machine.

"Nora says you ain't fit company for a self-respectin' squirrel. You'll be losin' a nice gal friend, if she is my daughter."

State Wins Air Safety Campaign

Harrisburg — Aviation Week Magazine's air safety plaque with citation has been awarded to the Pennsylvania Aeronautics Commission, it was announced by Theodore Roosevelt, III, secretary of the Pennsylvania Department of Commerce, and chairman of the Pennsylvania Aeronautics Commission.

Awarded for "distinguished service in achieving safer utilization of aircraft," the recognition comes from the Flight Safety Foundation through the award sponsored by the magazine.

Secretary Roosevelt also announced that William L. Anderson, executive director of the Pennsylvania Aeronautics Commission had received for the commission a tribute from the Crash-Injury Research Unit, sponsored by the Cornell University Committee for Air Safety Research. Findings of the Cornell unit have been accepted by manufacturers in their desire to develop additional safeguards in designing personal aircraft. Cornell began its crash-injury work in 1942. ## Geraldine M. Nero and Glenn M. Logan Wed Saturday In Saint Paul's Church

A simple setting of baskets of white mums and tapers in candleabra was used in decorating St. Paul's Lutheran church at 3 p. m. Saturday, when Rev. Nore G. Gustafson united in marriage Geraldine M. Nero, 108 Oak street, and Glenn M. Logan, Tiona.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Leonard Haag and Lester Nero, Warren, and the bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. John D. Logan, Tiona.

Wedding music included traditional organ selections played by Mrs. Emil Jacobson and vocal numbers by Mrs. Goldie Schaffer. Before the ceremony, she sang "Bless This House" and "Prayer Perfect", with "O Perfect Love" during the ceremony.

Escorted and given in marriage by her father, the bride wore white slipper satin, with Chantilly lace overlaid on the Queen Anne collar and inserted in the fitted bodice. Tiny white satin buttons fastened the gown to the waistline and the peplum over the court train was embroidered with sequins and seed pearls. Long sleeves tapered to points at the wrists. A Juliet cap of seed pearls held her veil of illusion net and a white orchid with streamers topped her white Testament.

The bridegroom's sister, Mary Lou Logan, was maid of honor; bridesmaids were Grace Atkins, Tidioute, and Ruth Wolfe, with Susan Loper, cousin of the bridegroom, as the flower girl. Miss Logan wore green with matching mits and a headband which matched her colonial bouquet of yellow mums. Miss Atkins was in pink, with contrasting headband and bouquet of blue mums; Miss Wolfe, in blue with headband and bouquet of pink mums. Miss Susan wore white taffeta, with pink sash and headband, and carried a basket of mixed flowers.

Blair Logan served his brother as best man and ushers were Lyle Rulander and Chester Munksgard. Mrs. Haag chose gray lace over pink taffeta, with accessories in matching shades, and Mrs. Logan wore teal blue crepe and black accessories, each with a shoulder corsage of pink roses.

Guests numbering 100 attended the reception which followed in the church parlors, including relatives and friends from Kane, Lakewood, Mayville, Tidioute, Washington, D. C., Chicago, Youngsville, Tiona, State College, Johnstown, Punxsutawney, Oil City, Franklin, East Lansing, Mich., Clarion, Titusville, Ludlow and Clarendon.

Mrs. Harry Haag, Lakewood, served the four-tiered cake, which was topped with miniature, bridal couple, and presiding were Mrs. Lyle Rulander and Mrs. Chester Munksgard. White mums and candles, white wedding bells and streamers were used in attractive decorations.

Mr. and Mrs. Logan will be at home to friends in Tiona after December 3. For a wedding trip to Washington and points south, the bride chose a suit of melon color, black accessories and a white orchid.

The bride was graduated from Warren High School in 1947 and is employed by the Bell Telephone Company. Honoring her with showers have been Mrs. William Wolfe, Mrs. Richard Amacher, Mrs. Leonard Haag and Mrs. John D. Logan, with her mother giving the rehearsal party.

Mr. Logan was graduated from the local high school with the Class of 1948 and is employed by Hubbard Motor Sales.

Clarendon Groups In Get - Together

Clarendon, Nov. 27.—Mrs. Genevieve Kinch was in charge of the regular meeting of Clarendon WSCS, held in the Methodist church. Reports were given by various committees and it was stated $210 had been cleared in the recent turkey supper and bazaar, and $75 on the cook books. Mite boxes were opened and the sum of $60 reported from these.

Following the meeting, the group adjourned to the evangelical United Brethren church to meet with WSCS members. Devotions there were conducted by Nellie Meddock and Mabel Blair, with scripture and a hymn, prayer by Mrs. C. C. Van, and a vocal solo, "We Gather Together to Ask the Lord's Blessing", by Beverly Henry, accompanied at the piano by her mother, Mrs. Beulah Henry.

Mrs. Van presented Rev. Sprigg Harwood, who gave a very interesting talk on his experiences as a missionary in India and Malaya, also of his visit to Palestine, Jerusalem and other places. Following his address, all joined in singing "Now Thank We All Our God", and the WSCS marched to the front of the church to deposit their thankoffering before a candlelight picture of Christ, as Miss Henry played "Onward Christian Soldiers".

An article on Prayer and Thanksgiving was read by Nellie Meddock, followed by "Thankfulness" by Mabel Blair; a duet, "Safe Anchored in His Love", Martha Schneider and Mary Campbell, with Genevieve Kinch playing their accompaniment at the piano.

Mrs. Van then invited the group to the dining room, where a delicious lunch was served from a table attractively centered with an arrangement of chrysanthemums, Mrs. Kinch and Mrs. Van presiding. The visitors extended a vote of thanks to the hostesses for a very pleasant evening and expressed the hope they might entertain the WSCS group soon.

Wife Who Is Hard to Live With Will Soon Be Left to Herself

BE easy to live with if you want to stay married. The woman who is hard to live with is taking a chance on having to live alone.

What makes a woman easy to live with? From a man's point of view, these are probably the most essential requirements:

She doesn't smother him with her desire to be everything in the world to him, but gives him enough freedom so that he doesn't have to struggle to escape from feminine possessiveness.

She doesn't try to "manage" him, through nagging, tears, or feminine strategy, for she realizes that a grown man is perfectly capable of managing himself.

She shoulders her own worries and problems, instead of unloading them on her husband.

If there are children, she trains them well enough so that her husband doesn't come home each night to quarreling and confusion and a wife who is so fed up with both that she is yelling at the kids.

LIFE SHOULD BE ENJOYED

SHE ENJOYS LIFE

She hits a happy medium between efficiency and a happy-go-lucky attitude toward housekeeping, since either, if carried to an extreme, makes a woman hard to live with. If she is too efficient she shoves her family around to suit her own convenience. If she is too haphazard about her job she has a sloppy, poorly-run home.

She can laugh with her family—even at herself.

She doesn't try to be perfect or have the foolish notion that she is. She doesn't get her feelings hurt easily, so that her husband is forever wondering what he did this time to put him in the dog house.

She is warm-hearted and affectionate and not too critical of others.

Beverly Simons Becomes the Bride of David H. Deardorff In Church Rites

Beverly Simons, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Simons, 123 Water street, and David Henry Deardorff, son of Mr. and Mrs. Merle H. Deardorff, 15 Jackson avenue, were united in marriage at 7:30 p. m. Saturday in a beautiful ceremony performed in St. Paul's Lutheran church.

Pastor Nore G. Gustafson read the double ring service before an altar setting of palms, vases of mums and white tapers in gold candleabra.

Mrs. Emil Jacobson was at the organ to play the traditional wedding marches and as accompanist for Gordon Omdark, whose solos were "Hold Thou My Hand", "O Perfect Love" and "The Lord's Prayer".

The bride's gown of white Chantilly lace was styled with long sleeves, button-front bodice, and Peter Pan collar. Her veil of nylon net fell fingertip length from a shell-peel headband and her bouquet of lilies of the valley and fleur d'amour was centered with a white orchid.

She was given in marriage by her father and attended by Alice Betts, maid of honor, in dark rose velveteen; Noel Hubbs and Susie Mathis, in hunter green, all carrying frosted gold chrysanthemums with ivory streamers.

Melvin G. Keller was best man for Mr. Deardorff and ushers were Stuart S. Myer, Cleveland, O.; W. Gifford Hayward, Clarion; Ben Taylor and James Gotto.

Mrs. Simons chose dark green, with darker green accessories, and Mrs. Deardorff wore red with black velvet accents and black accessories. Their flowers were frosted white mums.

The reception followed immediately in the church parlors, with Meredith Walker and Sally Smith presiding at a table centered with a five-tier wedding cake, white mums and candles, with accent provided in mints to match the bridesmaids' dresses.

Out of town guests were Mr. and Mrs. S. S. Myer, Cleveland; Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Hayward,

Service stations never had a busier time, most owners, along with what helpers they, could keep on the job, were busy from early Friday morning on through the entire weekend. . . . Stations providing road service could not begin to keep up with the calls that came from all points in the area; Friday and Saturday there was a wild rush to have chains attached, while Saturday evening and Sunday the demand was for anti-freeze and help in thawing out frozen brakes. . . . Many of the car owners seeking assistance were motorists en route to nearby camps for the opening of the deer season, and a large number of these were unprepared for the weather extremes encountered. . . . The Pennsylvania Highway Department had a busy weekend of it caring for 520 miles of state roads in the county. Sunday for instance, there were engaged in snow removal, 17 trucks, three graders, two bulldozers, manned by about 44 men, while there were 22 clearing trucks, manned by 66 men. This work was necessary in addition to the activities of crews in the townships of the county. . . . Many motorists who succeeded in getting cars out of driveways Sunday found it difficult to locate spots in which to park them when they drove to church or other places, due to the heaps of snow and ice they found piled along the curbs. . . . The only outdoor spot in Warren, not covered with snow and ice Sunday was the New Process Co. parking lot at the corner of Hickory street and Third avenue. . . . Late yesterday Beauty playgrounds looked like a gigantic ice skating rink.

"I WANT WOMEN GOING THRU THE 'CHANGE' TO KNOW"

"You've probably heard a lot of tales about the 'change of life'. I know I did and knew that many women suffer distress from this cause. But I didn't pay much attention until I reached middle-age and started suffering from embarrassing hot flushes, nervous irritability, tired, weak, strangely restless feelings—due to these functional causes. My druggist (who incidentally is quite a peach) told me about Lydia Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to relieve these symptoms and I find it gives me simply amazing relief.

"What's more—I've discovered by taking Lydia Pinkham's Compound regularly—it helps build up resistance against these distressing symptoms. I can easily understand why my druggist said it's been the woman's friend for almost a century. If you're going through 'change of life' and suffering from such symptoms—you really should try Lydia Pinkham's Compound!"

P. S. Pinkham's Compound tastes sweet in a little water or fruit juice. Or you may prefer Lydia Pinkham's TABLETS with added iron.

Congress In No Mood To Do Much In Short Session

Washington, Nov. 27 — (AP) — Congress reconvened today for a short "lame duck" session and got a prod from President Truman to extend rent controls and vote statehood for Alaska and Hawaii.

But most of the legislators, in talking with newsmen, said frankly they did not expect much to be accomplished in the few weeks remaining before the new congress elected Nov. 7 takes over on Jan. 3.

Republicans, who will have increased strength in the new congress, obviously were in a mood to put off everything except emergency legislation until the 82nd Congress meets.

Mr. Truman sent a letter to the capital asking a 90-day extension of the rent control program which will expire Dec. 31 in most cities. He plugged for statehood for Alaska and Hawaii at a conference with Democratic congressional leaders.

In line with Mr. Truman's wishes, the leaders made statehood for Alaska the first order of business for the senate.

At the same time, however, an agreement was reached to lay that measure aside temporarily whenever there are appropriations or other emergency matters to handle. If the Alaska measure goes through, statehood for Hawaii will be next on the docket.

The schedule was outlined to reporters by Senate Democratic leader Lucas (Ill.) after the White House huddle of the party's legislative leaders just ahead of the opening gavel.

House speaker Rayburn missed the first Monday morning "quarterback conference" with the president. His train from Texas was delayed.

Vice President Barkley was on hand, as was House Democratic leader McCormack (Mass.).

Two secret service agents accompanied Barkley. His guard has been increased since the Nov. 1 attempt to assassinate President Truman at his Blair House living quarters.

Complete Collapse of Giant Dike to "End the War Is Threatened" said the 25th was hit hard in the Majon area, six miles northeast of Yongbyon. He said the situation there was critical.

Reserve units of Americans, British and Turks were rushed up to bolster a sagging 30-mile east-west section of the winding 80-mile front stretching inland from the Yellow Sea. The front runs from 40 to 60 miles south of the Manchurian border.

An estimated 130,000 Reds—most of them Chinese in quilted winter uniforms—began the counter-attack late Saturday night.

Republic of Korea (ROK) troops and the U. S. Second and 25th Divisions bore the brunt of the attacks, which continued with increasing fury Sunday night.

Correspondent Leif Erickson said the American divisions stopped the second night attacks in the center of the line after earlier withdrawals of several miles.

The situation on the eastern flank, manned by the ROK Seventh, Eighth and Sixth Divisions, was not clear. Fighting withdrawals of four to 11 miles in the ROK sector were reported Sunday.

Field dispatches indicated heavy Allied casualties. An indirect censorship settled over operations as a security measure.

In Tokyo, General MacArthur's spokesman said the Chinese counter-attacks were expected. He asserted that the U. N. offensive, which MacArthur hoped would end the war by Christmas was halted "temporarily" but "is continuing."

The spokesman described Sunday's withdrawals as limited and added that, in any general advance, the foremost spearheads can be expected to be pushed back. That's what is happening now, he said.

But he declined to elaborate on what was meant by limited withdrawals.

In the north-central sector, U. S. Marines drove westward from the big Changjin power reservoir toward a Red redoubt in snow-mantled mountains.

It was too early to see whether and to what extent, the Marine drive would help U. N. forces falling back on the northwest front.

MANY COMPLAINTS

The police docket is full of complaints of persons calling about parked cars blocking driveways and crosswalks about town over the week end. Wherever possible, officers located the owners and had the cars moved, but it was obviously impossible in many cases.

NOTICE
Russell Volunteer Firemen Party of Games Will Be Discontinued Until Further Notice.

FIRST CASUALTY
At press time this afternoon, the Borden ambulance was on its way to Warren General Hospital with a hunter injured in the woods back of Brookston. Meager information available indicated the hunter had been shot in the right leg and had to be carried some distance to the highway and the ambulance. The patient was listed at the emergency ward of the hospital as Ralph Albert, 24, 36 Warden street, Union City.

District Reels From Effects of Most Severe Winter Storms

and to stay at home if at all possible."

Highway officials also reported that numerous secondary roads are blocked by cars of deer hunters who tried to make it into their camps, but had to abandon their cars on the roads when they bogged down in the deep snow.

Utility services here luckily escaped the ravages of the storm in comparison with other areas like Altoona, which has been without electrical power for the past 24 hours.

Fenelec reported minor line trouble in some sections of the county, while Bell Telephone officials said the storm had little effect on its service in the immediate area, and at Kane and Bradford. However, phone lines in the DuBois and Coudersport sections were hard hit, and emergency crews are being recruited from a wide area for repair work in central and eastern Pennsylvania communities, which received a double-barreled wallop from both the storm and floods.

The deluge of snow and rain snarled transportation facilities throughout the area. The Warren-Jamestown-Buffalo run of the Greyhound Bus lines went through as scheduled Saturday, but runs east, south and west through Kane, Pittsburgh and Cleveland were cancelled because of impassable roads.

Trains were running many hours late and some of the runs were cancelled altogether. Pennsylvania westbound passenger train No. 551 this morning was among those cancelled. Eastbound No. 970 was about an hour late but is attempting to get through to Harrisburg.

Railroad section crews battled throughout the day and night to keep the switches thawed out, and water over the tracks and a wash-out at Johnsonburg added to their difficulties. All main lines appear to be open, but some difficulty is being experienced in the freight yards.

State Police issued repeated warnings throughout the weekend for motorists to stay off the highways, and to drive only when absolutely necessary.

The Warren Fire Department received about 10 calls Saturday and Sunday as the result of the storm. Most of the calls were to shut off hot water tanks and furnaces in flooded basements on the west side.

At 3:30 a. m. Saturday, the firemen went to the Carlson store at Russell street and Madison avenue when an upstairs tenant smelled smoke. Investigation disclosed a damper on a coal stove was shut, but there was no fire and no damage was caused.

Saturday afternoon at 1:24 o'clock, the firemen were called to 103 Redwood street where a car battery had blown up and set fire to a car owned by Curtis Gibson. The upholstery on the front seat and Gibson's clothing also was sprayed by acid, and damage was estimated at $25.

Firemen were called to 448 Conewango avenue Saturday evening to investigate a smoke report, and found instead there was sewer gas in the cellar.

The firefighters also were called to the Nichols gas line service station at Parker street and Pennsylvania avenue, east, last night when a jug of gasoline broke and was ignited by a pilot light from a stove. The flames went up the walls and into a back room, causing damage estimated at about $100.

Warren borough schools opened as usual today, but schools in Mead township, Irvinedale, Youngsville, Pittsfield, Irvine, Garland and Eldred township, remained closed today because of impassable roads, and some of them also will remain closed tomorrow.

Many college students home for the Thanksgiving holiday also had their vacations extended when virtually all schools in western and central Pennsylvania announced they would stay closed until Wednesday or Thursday.

Sunday vesper services were cancelled in numerous churches in the Warren area, and many organizations are postponing meetings that had been scheduled for tonight and tomorrow night.

All throughout the eastern part of the state, homes were filled by the water of rivers and creeks overflowing their banks.

NOT WISE TO PASS WITH BIDDABLE HAND

By OSWALD JACOBY

Written for NEA Service

In one of my very first articles for this column I showed how a player who failed to open with a biddable hand might get shut out of the auction altogether. That's not the only danger of passing with a biddable hand. Another trouble is that you may never thereafter show the value of the hand.

This danger is shown in today's hand, taken from an international team match recently played in Amsterdam.

South had no trouble making his contract. He took the opening lead with dummy's ace of hearts, drew trumps in three rounds, and ran the spades to discard dummy's heart losers. It was then safe to knock out the ace of clubs. Six spades could not have been made again, a heart lead. Declarer could win and draw trumps, but then the opponents would cash a heart trick when they were given the ace of clubs.

When this hand was played in the other room, the North player passed instead of opening the bidding. South opened, or course, with one spade. Now North tried to show his values by a jump to three no-trump.

This jump was not enough. North had managed to show a good hand, but he had not managed to show the magnificent fit for diamonds that was needed to bid a slam in that suit—the only makable slam. South had no worries about three no-trump and didn't see much prospect of getting to a better contract. He therefore passed at three no-trump, thus missing the slam.

Incidentally, North's opening bid, fine bid. The jump from four clubs to five diamonds was a very good choice too. After opening the bidding, North had made minimum rebids in no-trump, indicating that he had a balanced hand and a weak opening bid.

When South still persisted, going to four clubs, North could safely show that he really had a very good fit for diamonds. He had already shown a weak hand (for a player who could open the bid, be interpreted as a very strong bid.

As it happened, the jump to five diamonds was all the encouragement South needed. North had a weak opening bid, he knew, but it surely included four diamonds to the queen, an ace, and some strength in hearts.

With weaker diamonds, or without an ace, North would have bid only four diamonds. With nothing in hearts, North could not have

Ed Shanshala Accorded First Team Berth On All-Northwestern Pennsylvania Football Team

Ed Shanshala, quarterback for the Warren High Dragons, was only able to play the first few games of the 1950 football campaign before suffering a severe leg injury, but his play in those few games was good enough to win him a first team berth on the Northwestern Pennsylvania All-Northwestern football team.

The team was picked by sports writers on daily newspapers representing 12 area counties.

Two other members of the Dragon squad, Paul Shattuck and Roger Babcock, both linemen, were accorded second team spots, and Dan Jackson, Bob Foley and Bob Reese, all linemen, were accorded honorable mention.

But Few of Early Season Predictions On College Grid Results Are Realized

New York, Nov. 27 — (AP) — What a difference two months can make!

Remember the start of the college football season at the end of September?

Notre Dame was going to rule the roost nationally. . . Cornell was to take the Ivy League championship. . . Stanford was the class of the west coast. Now that the season is practically over, it doesn't seem possible that anyone could see the picture that way.

Some of the early season predictions did come true, though. Michigan was thought to be the best team in the big 10. It was a mighty close squeak, but the Wolverines made it and today were expected to be tapped officially for the trip to the Rose Bowl.

On the west coast, the champion California Bears were regarded as also-rans behind Stanford and Southern California. But Pappy Waldorf is not a man to take the experts seriously, so his team too, is expected to be tapped today for the Rose Bowl.

Texas was loaded and everybody knew it. The Longhorns did not disappoint. Even though Southern Methodist went to the top of the heap in the early stages of the season. But now, after losing three of their last four games, the Mustangs are just about out of the running for any Bowl consideration.

And who would have thought Princeton would finish its season unbeaten and untied? The Tigris won the Ivy League championship and there is a suspicion in many quarters that they could give any team in the nation a battle.

Before hostilities started, Tennessee was regarded behind only Notre Dame, Army and Michigan. Kentucky was way down the list. The vols were all but forgotten until Kentucky sold them short Saturday.

With only a smattering of games left next Saturday, four major teams remained unbeaten and untied—Princeton, Oklahoma, Wyoming and Army. All have nine victories except Army which has eight. The season is over for Princeton and Wyoming, while Army still must tangle with Navy Saturday and Oklahoma must get past Oklahoma A and M.

In addition to the Rose Bowl, the combatants in only one other major Bowl — the Cotton — are selected. They will be Texas and Tennessee. Kentucky has accepted an invitation to the Sugar Bowl at New Orleans, but its opponent won't be known until Oklahoma writes finish on the season's business. The Sooners will be there come Jan. 1, though.

'Y' City Basketball League To Open 1950-51 Season Tonight

The YMCA City Basketball League will raise the curtain on its 1950-51 season tonight with two games scheduled to take place at the "Y" gym. Tonight's games will match the New Process against the Ramblers at 7 o'clock and the Rockets against the Style Shop at 8.

Admission will be 20 cents for students and 35 cents for adults.

League competition should be rather close this year with a well rounded lineup of six teams. The Style Shop is the only team that seems a little top heavy at present with a lineup of former high school and college stars.

On Thursday evening the Atlantic five battles the New Process and the Ramblers clash with the Youngsville Merchants.

Business, Not Pro Football, Beckons Notre Dame's Leahy

BY HARRY GRAYSON
NEA Sports Editor

NEW YORK—(NEA)—Certainly, Frank Leahy some day will resign as Notre Dame's head coach.

But this you can put down for sure. When Leahy turns over command in South Bend, it will mark the end of an illustrious gridiron career. He definitely will not coach a professional team.

Leahy had that opportunity when he switched from Boston College to Notre Dame in 1941. It was then that Fred Mandel, Jr., the Chicago department store tycoon who then owned the Detroit Lions, offered Leahy a contract that would make him financially independent for life.

Every coach's ambition is to coach his alma mater, especially when it has a football tradition like that of the Irish. Leahy knew what he could accomplish at Notre Dame, fully realized the position's tremendous outside potentialities.

Notre Dame made Leahy a rich man, although his coaching salary is no more than $16,000 a year. He has an insurance business in New York, will take over half of a gigantic beer distributing company in the New York metropolitan area.

SINCE he was Fordham's line coach he has been associated with a rubber company manufacturing basketball shoes. He has a television connection. He has a syndicated newspaper column on football. He wrote a fine book on football. He is out as a public speaker at least 20 times a year at up to $1000 a rattle. He's the top man at football clinics throughout the land.

It is big business that beckons Leahy.

When Frank Leahy does turn his back on football, his successor at Notre Dame easily could be Hugh Devore, the people's choice now at New York University.

Now we hear that Marchmont Schwartz has decided to reject a new five-year contract at Stanford.

While March Schwartz stands very well with University officials, there is some dissatisfaction on the part of alumni and student body. It is reported that Knute Rockne's favorite back of 20 years ago made up his mind that the oil business around Houston would be much easier.

Among those mentioned as a successor is Larry (Moon) Mullins, a Notre Dame teammate who has coached with success at St. Ambrose College of Davenport, Ia. He was raised in California.

This has been a record year for coaches walking out, which indicates that the pressure is greater than ever.

NEW YORK—(NEA)—The first thing Charles Albert Bender will tell the Athletics' pitchers next spring is never to waste a ball. Like Andy Coakley and other veteran pitchers, he knows that wasting balls is the most pronounced fault of the bulk of today's hurlers.

"I attended a dinner in Providence last winter at which Roy Campanella talked," says Professor Coakley, Columbia's coach for 30 years. "The catcher put his finger smack dab on the trouble when he said that the Brooklyn pitchers wasted too many balls."

"When the Athletics' Chief Bender had two strikes on a hitter, he wanted to get rid of him right then and there. He would break a low curve over the outside corner or fire the hard one."

"The ball can be pitched in many zones between the armpits and knees, so why not get the ball in the spot where the hitter least likes a pitch and with something on it before you are behind him?"

This makes a lot of sense, yet some managers have fined pitchers for not wasting pitches when they were in position to do so with two strikes on the batter.

This practice increased with the advent of the lively ball, when pitchers and managers developed a home-run complex.

TOO frequently, however, the pitcher winds up in difficulty. With a full count, he has to get the ball over, or walk the hitter. Naturally, he is more likely to let up just a bit than on the previous pitch. That is when the hitter tees off for the long ball.

"It might be all right for a pitcher without too much stuff to waste a ball now and then," says Professor Coakley, "but most major league pitchers have sufficient authority to avoid a supposed stratagem that more often than not spells headaches."

Bender will be crowding 88 when he takes charge of the Philadelphia Americans' pitchers next spring. Connie Mack calls him the greatest money pitcher of all time.

Bender was not yet 20 when he shut out Clark Griffith and the ill-star New York Highlanders in his American League bow in 1903. He was managing and pitching for New Haven in '21, when Scout Andy Coakley told Miller Huggans that the old Chippewa would help the Yankees to their first pennant.

Six years later, at 44, Bender led the Middle Atlantic League on an earned-run basis. He pitched three games a week in independent ball through '37, when he was 54.

Chief Bender brings back much pitching sense and many a stirring story to the American League.

Penn'a Collegiate Football Season Is Just About At End

Philadelphia, Nov. 27 — (AP) — Except for the postponed game between Pitt and Penn State, Pennsylvania's Collegiate football season game to a snowy, windy end over the weekend.

The traditional meeting between Pitt and Penn State was snowed out Saturday and rescheduled for today, but the threat of more snow caused officials to move the date back a second time. Now the game is set for next Saturday at Pitt Stadium.

Scranton just about lost all hope of a post-season bowl bid by dropping a 12-0 decision to Niagara yesterday. The game was another originally scheduled for Saturday and postponed one day because of the weekend storms.

Scranton has been in the running for a bid to the Tangerine Bowl at Orlando, Fla. The Royals had been unbeaten in college competition this season, losing only to the Quantic Marines.

Penn-A two touchdown pie-game favorite—was bogged down in the mud at Franklin field on Saturday and lost to Cornell 13-6.

Penn Captain Francis (Reds) Bagnell picked up 41 yards rushing but was dropped for 25 yards loss in attempting to pass. He needed a net gain of 24 yards to set a new intercollegiate offensive record and missed by eight yards.

The game was played in a driving rain with high winds playing all sorts of tricks with the ball. The field was a quagmire.

Temple dropped a 26-21 decision to Holy Cross in a game played at Worcester, Mass. and rain and wind gusts ranging up to 43 miles per hour. Holy Cross outtrashed the Owls 325 to 64 yards but Temple held its own thanks to an air attack advantage of 97 to 57 yards.

OPENER SET

Pittsburgh, Nov. 27 — (AP) — The basketball team of the University of Pittsburgh will open its 1950-51 season with a game Dec. 2 at Kent State College in Kent, Ohio. The 26-game schedule will take the Panthers from coast to coast. It includes a Christmas holiday tour that calls for games with Minnesota, Washington, Oregon State, California, U.C.L.A. and Iowa.

Tips Offered On Dressing Of Deer

It is estimated that tons of tasty, nourishing venison spoil and are wasted each deer season in Pennsylvania because some hunters lack experience in properly dressing and preserving the flesh of their kills, or warm weather accounts for meat loss that would not have occurred in seasonably cool atmosphere.

Henry P. Davis, of the Remington Arms Company, offers some excellent tips to deer hunters in an article titled, "Don't Waste That Meat". Here they are for the benefit of those unaccustomed to dressing their deer.

"The hunt never comes to a successful conclusion until the fruits of the hunter's labors reach destination without spoilage and the trophy is properly cared for. Much excellent venison goes to waste each season because the hunter does not exercise proper caution in dressing the animal and seeing that the meat is completely cooled as soon as possible.

"As soon as the animal is killed, the hunter should turn the animal's head downhill so that it will bleed freely, insert his knife at the point of the brisket and cut towards the head.

"The carcass should be cut open from crotch to throat (unless the head is to be saved for mounting), and care should be exercised so that the intestines are not punctured. The vent should be cut around and the organs in the pelvic cavity loosened. Hair must be kept from coming in contact with the meat. The windpipe and gullet should then be cut free from the throat. Pulling backward on the windpipe and gullet, cut free any part that sticks to the carcass. When all internal organs have been removed the cavity should be spread apart with a stick and should be wiped dry with a clean cloth. Water should not be used in washing out the cavity.

"The easiest way to cool out the carcass is to hang it in a shady spot. This should be done as soon as possible, as the body heat

Chicago Bears Are On The Loose Again

New York, Nov. 27 — (AP) — The Chicago bears, a ruthless gang of gridiron killers, are on the loose again!

Playing their finest game of the season, the Bears stomped on Los Angeles, 24 to 14, yesterday, and not only ended the Rams' six game winning streak, but dropped them clean into second place in the National Football League national conference.

The American conference battle also continued to rage as the New York Giants upset the Philadelphia Eagles, 7 to 3, to tie Cleveland's idle Browns for the lead. A pair of photo-finishers are in the making.

The Rams (8-3) conclude the season against Green Bay Sunday, while the Bears (8-2) still have the Chicago Cardinals and Detroit Lions left. So the Los Angeles cause is not completely hopeless.

It's much the same with the Giants and the Browns, both sporting 8-2 records with two games to play. Philadelphia gets that long-awaited crack at the Browns in Cleveland Sunday, while the Giants entertain the cross-town rivals, the Yankee in Philadelphia and the Brown visit Washington.

In other games, which had no bearing on the divisional race, the Green Bay Packers edged San Francisco, 25-21, and Washington outlasted Baltimore, 38-21.

Roosevelt Highway Officials in Warren

Robert M. Sims, President, and John H. Brandamore, secretary of the Roosevelt Highway Association of Pennsylvania, accompanied by their wives, all of Scranton, were visitors in Warren over the weekend. They arrived by automobile on Friday, planning to hold a meeting on Saturday with the association directors located on this end of route six. Due to the severe storm, it was impossible for Directors A. R. Hill, of Mt. Jewett, Earl Cherry of Corry, Harry Engh, of Edinboro, and V. E. Best of Albion to get here for the meeting, which was to be held in the Warren Chamber of Commerce office with Nat W. Drake, local director. Mr. Drake is chairman of the associations road sign committee, and this meeting was arranged to plan for the placement of several signs along the western end of Route 6 in Pennsylvania between Wellsboro and the Ohio State line, in an endeavor to encourage through traffic to follow Route 6 across Pennsylvania rather than some other route.

However, the Scranton officials did meet with Drake and Vern Jones, manager of the Warren Branch of the National Advertising Company and tentative plans call for the spotting of several Scotch light signs which will be in place by early spring. The Sims and Brandamores planned to return to Scranton yesterday, but due to road conditions, were unable to leave until this morning.

They were entertained over the weekend by Mr. and Mrs. Drake in their home at 14 East Third avenue.

Four Accidents Are Investigated By Borough Officials

City police investigated four accidents over the weekend, mostly of the minor variety. No one was injured in any of the crashes.

On Friday, cars operated by Edward A. Kronenwetter, of St. Marys, and Charles L. Thompson, 109 Second avenue, collided on Pennsylvania avenue west near Hickory when Kronenwetter backed out of a parking space into the side of the Thompson car. Damage was estimated at $30.

Also on Friday, Mrs. Richard Ross, 204 Canton street, reported to police that the rear bumper of her car was damaged slightly by another car driven by Hubert Blystone, of Union City RD 2.

Shortly before noon on Friday, cars operated by Robert Luker, of Tidioute, and Jack D. Ballard, of Schanz street, collided on Pennsylvania avenue, west, between Hazel and Laurel streets. The police report stated that Ballard damaged his car to an estimated $125 when he ran into the rear of the Luker vehicle.

At 2:30 a. m. today, Stanley Littlebrant, Stiller Hotel, skidded on Pennsylvania avenue west and struck a fire hydrant at Hazel street. The amount of damage was not noted on the report. Firemen have repaired the hydrant.

Benefit Show For Youth Canteen Fund Draws Good Crowd

Nearly 800 adults and teenagers applauded the Youth Canteen vaudeville show Saturday night at the Woman's Club. Four of the out-of-town performers could not arrive because of floodable roads in Tidioute, and impassable highways from Pittsburgh and Corry to Warren.

The VFW post sent over two performers, an excellent juggler and a tenor. The Kordion Kids also performed. Dick Rapp and Nancy King presented two dance numbers, and another young dancer, Phoebe Jewell, of North Warren, acted as mistress of ceremonies and also presented an acrobatic dance.

The popular skit called "If Men Played Cards Like Women Do" was performed by Chuck Tranter, David Smith, Paul Myers and Monty McClure.

Proceeds of the show will go to the Youth Canteen Building Fund. During the show Saturday night, Jaycee President Kenneth Carlson presented a check for $400 from the Junior Chamber to James C. Hengst, who in return gave the check to the Youth Canteen president, Nula Cheronia.

State Police Probe Two Minor Crashes

State police report but two accidents over the weekend, both occurring on Friday. No automobile crashes were reported during the height of the storm Saturday and Sunday.

Shortly after noon on Friday, on Route 6 about two miles east of Warren, cars operated by Ed. Stengel, of Warren RD 3, and Lloyd Baumen, of Fairview, were damaged to an estimated $300 when Baumen ran into the rear of the Stengel car. Both were headed west. No one was injured.

Death Rate Down From Scaldings

New York—Here's evidence that the good old days in some respects weren't so good after all. Forty years ago the loss of life through scalds or burns was seven times as high as it is today. Even as recently as the period of 1936 to 1950 the average death rate was double last year's.

This is based on the experience among the industrial policyholders of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, and the improvement, according to the company's safety experts, is due largely to the modernization of the American home with its improved heating, cooking and lighting facilities.

"The trend reflects in some measure the effect of consistent and widespread education for safety, and the marked advances which medical science has made in the treatment of severe burns," declared Dr. Donald B. Armstrong, second vice president in charge of the Metropolitan's health and welfare activities. "But most important has been the passing of the old fashioned coal or wood stove, the kerosene lamp, and other hazards of past years."

Even now burns and scalds claim about 4,600 lives yearly in the United States, and many additional thousands suffer serious and disfiguring injuries which do not prove fatal, the company's statisticians report.

Analysis of claim records shows that among adults, burns from stoves and grates, the explosion of flammable liquids, and careless smoking are the most frequent cause of the fatalities. For very young children scalds from hot liquids and steam are the most prevalent causes, and among somewhat older youngsters, burns from stoves and grates are the most frequent.

ST. NICK AT METZGER-WRIGHT'S: Santa Claus, making his annual visit to the Metzger-Wright Co. store, arrived on time shortly after one o'clock Friday afternoon. Above the Times-Mirror staff photographer caught him with a group of youngsters who formed a welcoming committee when he appeared in front of the store. He was at the store afternoon and evening Friday and most of Saturday, and hopes to return each weekend through December.
